So what's going on in English with contextual examples

Note: I appreciate the logic of the subtle distinction made by some other answers here that "are you going to" refers to a pre-planned activity and really means "are you going through with the pre-planned action" whereas "will you (go)" is a more open-ended question simply asking "are you likely to do something in the future" -- but this is possibly not a clear-cut distinction because not all speakers might mean the same thing; so such a statement needs to be interpreted in context.
